

Alberta Safety Council

Alberta entered the summer traffic season with a slightly better record than in 1958, according to figures compiled by the Alberta Safety Council.

In the four-month period ending April 30, accidents showed a decline of 9.7 per cent, traffic fatalities a decline of 19.4 per cent, and injuries an increase of 3.3 percent, compared with 1958 figures.

In the four-month period ending 1959, 6,665 accidents were reported, 1,543 injuries and 54 deaths. Last year, the figures were 7,397, 1,494 and 67.

During the month of April, 14 persons died in 12 mishaps; 495 were injured in 324 accidents, compared with 560 in April of 1958; 129 injuries were reported, compared with 144.

The traffic death in Edmonton marked an otherwise insignificant reduction in fatalities where April accidents and injuries were below the 1958 figures. The city reported 14 deaths in April, compared with 600 in April of 1958; 129 injuries were reported, compared with 144.

In addition to the one traffic death in April (none occurred in April, 1958), Calgary reported 367 accidents, compared with 445 last year; and 58 injuries compared with 82.

In addition to the 12 deaths, a figure unchanged from April 1958, the R. C. M. P. reported 445 accidents (compared with 445 in April 1958), and 243 injuries, compared with 166.

Medicine Hat did not fare so well during April. Its accident total was 23, compared with 8 last year; and its injury total was 6 compared with 1. Lethbridge reported 28 accidents, two less than in April, 1958; and 11 injuries, compared with 10.

Also last April, Red Deer reported 23 accidents and 3 injuries; Drumheller reported 3 accidents and 1 injury, the same figures as reported by Wetaskiwin. Grande Prairie reported four accidents and two injuries, while other towns reported 45 accidents and nine injuries.

During April, R.C.M.P. estimated property damage at $775,365. Edmonton police estimated damage at $129,739, and Calgary estimated $135,068. The total for the Province during the month was estimated at $589,525 bringing the total for the year to $2,484,941.

Searle Precipitation Report

No. 6
Compiled from the records of Government and Bureau of Statistics. Records up to and including June 9, 1959.

During the week ending June 9th very little rain fell in Western Canada and temperatures were somewhat above normal. As a result, moisture reserves dwindled still further.

Growing season rains from April 1st to June 9th, by province, with last year's figures in brackets, are as follows: Alberta, 65% (57%) of normal; Saskatchewan, 44% (45%) of normal; and Manitoba, 109% (30%) of normal, giving a weighted average for the three Prairie Provinces of 57% (46%) of normal.

The total overall moisture condition of the three Prairie Provinces, which takes into account the moisture that accumulated prior to the present growing season on stubble and summerfallow, now stands at 69 per cent of normal, compared with 72 per cent last week and 83 per cent at this time a year ago. Respective figures for the three provinces are: Alberta, 65% (57%) of normal; Saskatchewan, 44% (45%) of normal; and Manitoba, 109% (30%) of normal.

Despite the extremely dry conditions which have prevailed in parts of both Saskatchewan and Alberta, the lack of moisture reserve has not cut moisture Canada, which, comparatively at least, should get a long way towards relieving the moisture deficiencies.

However, the period is fast approaching when plants will begin to make increasingly heavier demands for water, and further moisture will be imperative.

FOOTNOTE: Since the above report was prepared some very useful rain has fallen in Western Canada, which, comparatively at least, should get a long way towards relieving the moisture deficiencies.

A Commentary

Now that further participation have been received about the special conference of the five major wheat exporting nations called by President Eisenhower, early in May, it is possible to refer briefly to some of the conclusions reached.

In a review of food available and world food needs, for instance, it was recognized that the commercial export marketing of wheat by the countries represented, even though expanded somewhat, would be considerably below their combined capacity to supply for the next few years. In other words, unless there are striking changes in wheat production patterns and trends in both the major exporting and importing countries, there will be large movements of wheat into recent years to prevent further increases of surplus supplies in exporting countries.

The Conference also recognized that the real food needs of many underdeveloped countries exceed their ability to buy and consume.

It was satisfied commercially after period of economic development. It was realized, too, that while moderate increases in the total distribution and use of wheat can be accomplished within the next few years through increased efforts by both importing and exporting nations, there are physical and administrative limitations to the importation and distribution of wheat in many importing countries. Inadequate distribution facilities and lack of trained personnel can create bottlenecks which prevent adequate food from reaching the people, who need it to be surmounted as well. The feeling was, therefore, that it would take time and effort, in addition to food and investment to bring about the desired goals.

A direct outcome of the Conference was the establishment of a Wheat Utilization Committee, or committee body of governments represented, who, maintaining a close working relationship with F.A.O., will consider possibilities of expanding the world's commercial trade in wheat, the development of new markets, ways of increasing and making more effective the use of wheat supplies for promoting economic development and improving nutritional standards and closer co-ordination of disposal programs.

NEW COMPANY

A newly-formed company of Toronto actors is the nucleus of a radio series, Four's Company. This weekly CBC show should be called a drama series in the strict sense of the term; while plots will be presented from time to time, much of the series will be less like drama than good conversation, a sharing of books. Mayne Moore, Ruth Springfield (top), Diana Maddock and John Drayne make up the company.

The U.K. export market has strengthened now that cheese has been placed on a free entry list. In Canada, the Agricultural Stabilization Board acquired 21 carlots, or roughly 500,000 pounds of cheese during the winter. This was disposed of by tender for use on the domestic market.

OTTAWA, June 6, 1959.—A degree of optimism has been created in the Canadian cheese industry, following the lifting of local limitations by the United Kingdom.

Producing Quality Eggs

To produce the high quality eggs demanded by the public J. H. Thorne, lead contractor at Lethbridge experimental farm, suggests the following procedure:

1. Keep well balanced laying flock, with 10-12 birds at all times. If layers will be turned out during the day, it should not be done until mid-afternoon at which time the feed ingredients will have been supplied by the meal.
2. Provide plenty of fresh, clean water at all times.
3. Eggs should be gathered at least three times daily and cooled rapidly.
4. Eggs should be marketed at least twice each week, especially in the summer.

Canada's Bilingual Military College To Fill our Tri-Service Needs

Cadets at the College Royal Militaire de St. Jean, in Quebec, listen intently to recorded instructions in a second language that they will learn to speak correctly after their three year stay at Canada's only bilingual military college. Opened in 1952, the College prepares students for further studies at the Royal Military College in Kingston, Ontario, and a career in Canada's armed forces. Erected on the site of historic Fort St. Jean, the college's bilingual tradition can be traced back to 1884 when, following the departure of British troops, Colonel d'Orsmeaux opened the Royal Military College of Infantry, insuring future officers in both French and English.

During the first fifteen days of each month, outside the classroom, students at the College Militaire speak only in French, reverting to English for the next fifteen days. Rooms are usually shared by a French and an English-speaking cadet who help one another in learning the other language. Because of its bilingual facilities, St. Jean has offered French speaking cadets desirous of receiving military instruction in their mother tongue a chance to pursue a new career. The addition of a preparatory year, which corresponds better to the majority of the cadets' educational background is another asset which will increase the number of French-speaking cadets in the ranks of the graduating class.

Bilingualism at St. Jean does not change the purpose of the College which is to instruct cadets in the appropriate skills and to encourage the qualities essential to continued development after graduation as officers in the Regular or Reserve Forces of the Royal Canadian Navy, Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The formation of a future leader of men can be aided through three phases, broadly equivalent to the cadet's stay at St. Jean. The first step is obedience, the second, auto-discipline, the third power of command. Because an officer will always have men under his command the study of the humanities is added to his scientific education.

Dietician convention to be held in Manitoba

About 300 professional dietitians from all parts of Canada will attend the 24th annual meeting of the Canadian Dietetic Association at the Fort Garry Hotel, Winnipeg, June 9 to 11.

National president, Miss Diane Raymond, Montreal, says the theme of the convention, "Dietetics Unlimited", is particularly appropriate as the CDA is currently faced with "the opposite of unemployment": more job opportunities than there are dietitians.

Plans and means of attracting more young women into the profession to meet the expanding needs of Canadian hospitals, institutions and industrial enterprises will be discussed.

A number of distinguished medical, government and university officials will address the meeting on other subjects affecting the profession—Dr. L. B. Pett, Chief Nutrition Division, Department of National Health and Welfare will speak on "Revision of Canadian Dietary Standards"; Gordon Pickering, Manitoba Hospital Commissioner, "Implications of the Government Hospital Insurance Plan"; Dr. Jean Leichman, nutrition professor, University of Minnesota, "New Developments in Nutrition"; Dr. C. C. Strachan, of the Federal Department of Agriculture, "Commercial Feeding of Poultry"; Miss Margaret Gilliam, of Michigan State University, "Training the Non-Professional Worker"; and Miss Anne Guthrie, New York, an authority on the United Nations and the Middle East food problems. John A. MacAskey, Q.C., Winnipeg, prominent Canadian businessman will also address the meeting on a subject to be announced.

CDA past president, Mrs. Ruth Roth of Montreal will conduct a panel discussion on "Teaching of Dietitians", explaining the work currently underway with high school students and women's organizations. In addition to its own members' speakers bureau the CDA distributes a newly completed color film and informative literature about the profession.

Miss Anna Rydman, head of Food Services Department, University of Manitoba, is convention chairman and arrangements for the program will be in the charge of Dr. Helen MacArthur, former director of the University's School of Home Economics.

A GOOD TURN FOR SHUT-INS

The Scott Ladies' Over 200 Chatham, Ont. Boy Scouts have undertaken a library service for invalid and elderly people in that city. The Scouts will provide a free pick-up and delivery service for persons who cannot, due to age, health or bad walking conditions, go to the library personally. This should prove to be a most welcome service, as reading is often the only recreation of many shut-ins and elderly people.

Forests and fishing

Angling has become one of Canada's great outdoor sports. This has not been brought about overnight, but people are flocking to the fish. If this were so, fishermen would be visiting a local business and fish may be purchased for less than the price of a license.

People go fishing because it is relaxing, it is fun, it gives them an opportunity to get away from the conflicts and worries of everyday life. Besides the fun of fishing, there is something in the fresh air, the trees and wild flowers, rippling streams and beautiful lakes.

Angling, in one way or another, is a relaxing sport. There are lakes and some streams without trees but where along the watershed the forests are growing and gradually releasing cold, clear water to the faster creeks and streams. The quality of all streams is determined by the condition of the water above them.

Temperature is the most important factor in the environment for fish. For instance, brook trout will thrive in water with a temperature of 48 deg. F. and will die when the temperature reaches 75 deg. F. The fish use the water to regulate the flow and temperature of streams. When this water is polluted, the fish are in trouble.

Flash floods and soil erosion destroy spawning beds. The aquatic plants and animals grow in a destroyed. Muddy or heavily silty water is a great enemy for the growth of all living things. The water temperature rises, the oxygen content, on which the fish live, decreases and in time the fish is destroyed. For these reasons, forests are essential to fish. Anyone who has experienced the good fishing and the clear water in a forest stream, must conclude that good forestry must be done in good forest.

CPA to analyze Energy Authority Bill

In commenting on the introduction in the House of Commons of a Bill to provide for the formation of a national energy authority, Dr. Stuart, Manager of the Canadian Petroleum Association's Ottawa Information Office, made the following statement:

"The Canadian Petroleum Association has not yet had the opportunity to study the full text of the Bill. Representing a major portion of the computer producing oil and gas in Canada, the Association is naturally vitally concerned with the new legislation as it has been with the Border Energy Commission in the past. We presented the most comprehensive brief to the Commission during its initial hearings last year, and we studied in detail the Commission's interim report after which industry's action was expressed in a letter presented to the committee in December."

"This new legislation is bound to have a marked bearing on the future growth of the Canadian oil and gas industry and on the view of its vital nature. Immediate and intensive study will be required by the Association before any stand is taken or any views can be expressed. The Association hopes to have available very shortly a concrete analysis of the Bill and the effect it will have on the industry and the Canadian economy."

Causes of present flu outbreak in Sask. identified

"Causes of the present outbreak of influenza in the province have been identified by isolation of the virus at the Provincial Laboratories," Dr. F. B. Roth, deputy minister of public health, said in a press statement.

"Immediately after the first cases developed the laboratory began examining specimens of throat mucus and blood to identify the organisms responsible for the outbreak," he continued. "It has now been established that the influenza virus has been mixed once, with a virus of virus origin, and not identical to the Asian strain of that year being found in some areas of the province. In human cases it is the so-called B virus which is the cause, as well as other viruses of the adenovirus group."

Dr. Roth went on to say that all these viruses produce similar symptoms. "The disease on the whole has been mild and the attack on the individuals short-lived, but there have been some severe cases, however, as might be expected. The individuals who appear to be suffering."

In commenting on the use of vaccines, he said, "The only practical means of preventing an outbreak is the use of a specially prepared vaccine. Because of the large number of viruses which cause this disease, it has not been possible to prepare a satisfactory vaccine in large quantities. Unfortunately, small vaccines have been very difficult to prepare as well."

of Unemployment Insurance officials in Vancouver was commented upon by Magistrate Scott on recent case involving two men who manhandled a third man during a party at which funds for purchase of liquor came from unemployment insurance payments. "This is an illustration," says Magistrate Scott, "of what a farce is made of unemployment insurance. A tremendous amount of money people pay on unemployment insurance and social assistance is used for liquor."

AVERAGE TAXPAYER
In the U.S. according to figures compiled by United Press, is 29 years old, earns $6,183 a year, and pays out nearly two thirds of his lifetime earnings in taxes.

In Canada, although income average a bit lower than in the U.S., tax bite on earnings is, if anything, stiffer than south of the border. In income tax, for example, married couples do not enjoy the benefit of income "splitting" for tax purposes as they do in the U.S. For example, married couples do not enjoy the benefit of income "splitting" for tax purposes as they do in the U.S. For example, married couples do not enjoy the benefit of income "splitting" for tax purposes as they do in the U.S.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE "BENEFITS"
Among the "Benefits" enjoyed by Canadians covered by unemployment insurance is the "right" to use unemployment insurance payments to get drunk enough to invite attention of the police. Such is the view expressed by officials of the Unemployment Insurance Commission in Vancouver, who say that what the recipients do with their payments isn't the business of the Commission.

"They pay their premiums to cover themselves and if they do become unemployed they are fully entitled to the benefit."

What Unemployment Insurance Commission officials in Vancouver overlook is that employers, the taxpayers as a whole and employees are taxed to provide unemployment insurance benefits. Unemployment insurance thus forms part of the cost of doing business—a cost that must be reflected in prices paid by consumers.

Decisions for this outburst of righteous indignation on part

The weather is somewhat odd, with variable cloudiness and threatening at this writing. Tuesday On Saturday eve, a heavy shower occurred, followed by a dust storm from the west, accompanied by large hail that lasted for a short time, finally passing to the north east. Since writing the foregoing—starting late Tuesday eve, an electric storm brought liberal precipitation, which continued till after midnight.

National Grain COMPANY LIMITED
NG-5901

Over the past 15 years Canada has had the largest percentage increase in total production of any of the world's major countries.

Donald Deane, creator of "Ballads of Canada," wrote 800 books in the last four years of his life.

How to taste AUGUST in FEBRUARY

What you will need, of course, is an electric freezer or refrigerator. Then the fruits and vegetables you stored in August, when they were so fresh, so succulent and so plentiful, will still be as good in February. The produce from your garden can be stored with the dew still on it. Meats, too, can be purchased when the price is right, and kept fresh all through the year. Fish, wild and game, may be cleaned and put away the moment the fisherman's basket comes home. Poultry stays fresh and retains its flavor—and you save so much—in so many ways.

Food stays fresh for less than 48 days in a modern electric freezer or refrigerator.
